Miri is in school. Her teacher, Mrs Weiss is talking about Adjectives. Miri loves adjectives especially if they are nice ones that the teacher uses, like “Great work, Miri!”

Now the teacher asks the girls to use adjectives to describe the Coronavirus. Her friend Bruchi says, “Scary.”

Mrs Weiss explains that the Coronavirus is a new type of illness. An illness is when someone is not well.

For some illnesses people need to go to the hospital. The Coronavirus is very contagious. This means that it spreads easily and that people can catch it quickly.

The good news is that we can stop it from spreading. We can:

1. Wash our hands with soap to keep the bugs away.

2. Keep our hands under running water while we sing 'Happy Birthday' or 'Ivdu es HaShem B'Simcha'

3. Catch our sneezes in our elbows or in a tissue.

4. Put the tissue in the bin.

When Miri comes home she tells her Mummy all about the Coronavirus. Her brother Zevi asks, “Why do we need to wash our hands so much?”

Mummy explains that what we are doing now is more than regular handwashing because now we have to be extra careful. When a cure is found we can B'ezras HaShem go back to washing our hands the regular way.

Miri makes a beautiful poster reminding everyone to wash their hands. She is especially excited to bring it to school and show Mrs Weiss.
